

Health and Hygiene is delighted to announce the appointment of Dr Neil Forbes as their Veterinary Adviser. Dr Neil Forbes BVetMed DipECZM(avian) FRCVS (RCVS Recognised Specialist in Zoo and Wildlife (avian) Medicine), is a longstanding friend of Health and Hygiene, being a committed user of products for close to 20 years and having acted as Joint Chair for the USA FDA MUMS Expert Committee which considered and supported the licensing applications for F10 in USA. Neil has enjoyed an exemplary career in both private and corporate clinical practice ranging from traditional mixed practice, companion animal, to Specialised Exotic Animal Referral service including a ten year part time 'avian medicine' role in Academia. Neil was President of the European College of Avian Medicine then the European College and Zoological Medicine, (being instrumental in creating the European College of Zoological Medicine), then President of the European Board of Veterinary Specialisation. Neil was instrumental in setting up the British Veterinary Nursing Association training course on veterinary practice infection control, he remains a tutor and examiner on the course. Having left clinical practice Neil divides his time between Vulture Conservation, Zoo and other animal welfare related inspections together with various advisory roles. Neil has lectured globally on aspects of avian medicine, biosecurity and infection control, he has authored more than 65 peer reviewed papers and has authored, edited or contributed to more than 37 books.

